When you enter the Ajni railway station, anytime soon, you'll find bright and colourful walls pillars instead of the usual grimy tobacco stains. This miraculous change is brought by Priyanka Wankhede, a Nagpur-based artist who currently lives in Mumbai.

Priyanka's urge to give a makeover to her hometown has led to this transformation.

Cars Destroyed As Slab Collapses In Empress Mall; No Action Taken Even After 20 Days!

Hence, in the last week of the March, she approached the local railway officials with this idea, which they approved immediately and gave the green signal.

After the approval, Priyanka initiated the project single handedly and started with giving a new look to the compound walls.
